What contribution do you envision ILASFAA making to the profession?

ILASFAA can help bridge the massive changes with financial aid and higher education by drawing on its successful history and knowledge base and applying it to future challenges. As a prominent state organization, it can be a leader in helping schools implement new policies while helping to train and acclimate new professionals to the field. I feel that ILASFAA has a huge responsibility to be the resource of choice for Illinois financial aid professionals and to an extent also resource for regional and federal policy guidance.

How would you support financial aid professionals as we move into the future for ILASFAA?

In this position I would want to be a representative of their concerns and a tool they could count on to get help and guidance on financial aid issues. I would also hope to make their membership in ILASFAA a more personal connection to professional networks.
